The author was a former Infantry officer in Vietnam and Military Intelligence officer in West Germany before going to law school and becoming an Army JAGC officer. JAGC-Off, written in a style similar to that of John Mortimer's Rumpole of the Bailey stories, tells readers how the real JAG Corps was. Each chapter is a fictionalized court-martial or administrative discharge board based on real cases or composites of case vignettes. Set in the past 40 years or so, most chapters focus on a particular court-martial or military administrative discharge board the way that Rumpole chapters focus on his trials.

* * * COMMENTS FROM READERS * * *

"Just finished reading it. Absolutely Fantastic!! It's funny, witty, just a very easy read. Great book! Please let me know when you publish. I want to get 5-10 copies (maybe more) as gifts."

—William J. Sichko, attorney and retired U.S. Marine Corps officer.

"JAGC-Off by Jonathan P. Tomes is an absolutely hilarious collection of war stories. Tomes takes us through the military career of the protagonist, James Thomas, from before he was an Infantry platoon leader in Vietnam through his time as a lawyer fresh out of law school till just after his retirement. Introducing us to the world of military justice, Thomas recounts tales of innovative trial tactics, bizarre alibis, and ungrateful clients. This laugh-out-loud book will keep you entertained. Simply put, it is a must-read."

—Michael I. Spak, law professor and retired U.S. Army JAG Colonel.
